

Guide for holding foreshore events at Lake Jindabyne, Lake Eucumbene and surrounding areas

The NSW Snowy Mountains offer a fantastic location for events and festivals. This guide aims to assist organisers in planning and staging events at our lakes and surrounding foreshore areas within the Snowy Monaro region.

Introduction

The lakes of Jindabyne and Eucumbene are popular areas for a range of activities and events. These events provide an opportunity to promote the region and are an important part of local community life.

Given the various land ownership arrangements, and regulatory and licence obligations of each stakeholder, it is critical that all events or commercial activities are properly managed, legally compliant, and conducted safely.

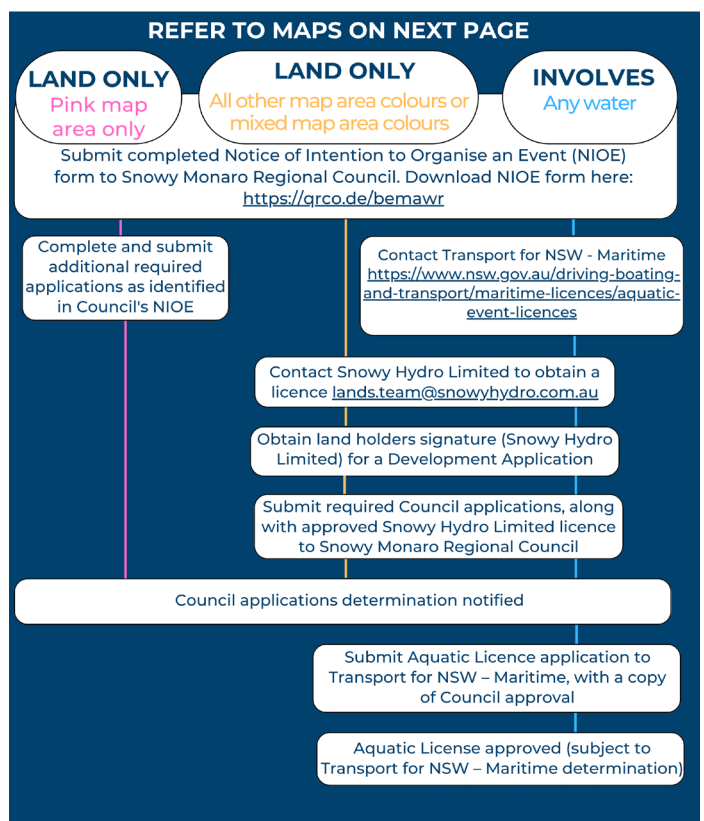

This step-by-step guide provides a clear overview of the specific requirements for each location and type of event or activity taking place.

This guide has been prepared in partnership with:

- NSW National Parks and Wildlife Service
- Snowy Hydro Limited
- Snowy Monaro Regional Council
- Transport for NSW – Maritime

Maps: Identify approval organisation by location

Approval timeframes

As processing can times differ significantly, event organisers should contact the relevant approval organisation at least six to twelve months before the date of their event. This will ensure that the approval process is complete on time.

Organisers should allow at least four months for NSW NPWS event approvals, with the length of time required for approval increasing in-line with event size and complexity.

For events requiring aquatic licences from Transport for NSW Roads & Maritime Services, it is recommended to apply a minimum of six weeks before the date of the event or activity. For complex events and events with longer lead times, organisers should submit applications further in advance.
